Title: The old garage

Prompt: Create a heavy metal album cover with a big skull in the center of what it looks like and old garage. The lights need to be seeing as they coming from the floor and from the ceiling and they need to see as led purple lights, the garage has an evil mood so everything needs to see dark and scared. I want the skull be the largest object on the cover following by the band members with their instruments and the background don't look too far away because is a garage. It needs to see as the band are playing and yelling as they play, the element that is holding everything together is the dark mood on the garage. The album cover can be asymmetrical because everything are going to have a different size and texture.

Genre choice: Heavy metal/Gothic

Vocabulary Breakdown: Value is how the lights or the dark make something sees more brighter or darker on the painting. Space is what it made look the objects on the painting far, big, small and what it makes bring our attention first to something in specific. Unity is what makes all the objects on the paint matches with each other. Balance is what it gives stability to the paint and nothing sees more heavy. Rhytim is when the lines or the colors repeat in the painting.
